'DAY OF THE FLOWERS' REVIEWS

The Hollywood Reporter (Day of the Flowers)

"Day of the Flowers makes fair use of its locations, cinematographer Vernon Layton garnering some alluringly atmospheric backdrops with his 35mm cameras (the picture was projected digitally at Edinburgh) imparting some flavors of a fascinatingly contradictory land."

Variety (Day of the Flowers)

"Tech contributions are thoroughly professional, with lenser Vernon Layton making the most of the lush Cuban locations."

View Belfast (Day of the Flowers)

The film makes terrific use of its authentic Cuban locations, creating a strong sense of place, aided by some superb cinematography from Vernon Layton".

IMDB External Review (Day of the Flowers)

"...stunning cinematography of the splendid locations, which really showed Cuba off at its best..."
